Jewellery

In the interests of health and safety, the governors have adopted the policy that, with the exception of watches and stud earrings, children do not wear jewellery to school.

The following advice is given by the British Association of Lecturers in Physical Education:

“Jewellery should not be worn in Physical Education lessons, because of the potential dangers inherent in such items when engaged in physical activity”.

Children are required to remove all jewellery, including stud earrings, before taking part in PE or swimming lessons.
